Construction of a School

'62

... foreword

The buzzing of a saw muffled through a closed door, the slap of wet cement, that hair-raising screech of the lift by the gym--the sounds of our school building being constructed around us.

Not knowing their names, but getting acquainted with workmen who flattened against the walls when end-of-class bells rang, stepping over buckets and tools in the halls, switching on lights with no electricity, playing basketball on the tennis court because one gym was not completed and the other was storage space, screaming above the noise, gazing out the window at the fascinating building process all we re part of our crazy year.

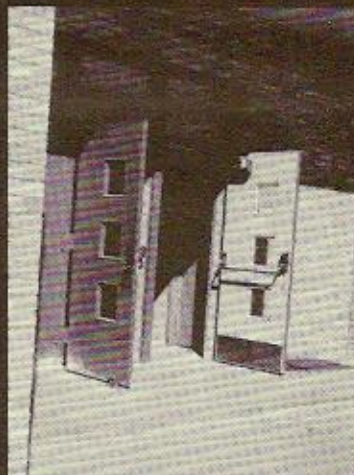

That cold, decaying red brick monstrosity called Junior High became a modern white brick building that stretched across the street to meet the old High School. No more wading through snow or mud when changing classes. No more rooms with one lone light; no more climbing steps to the Homemaking lab.

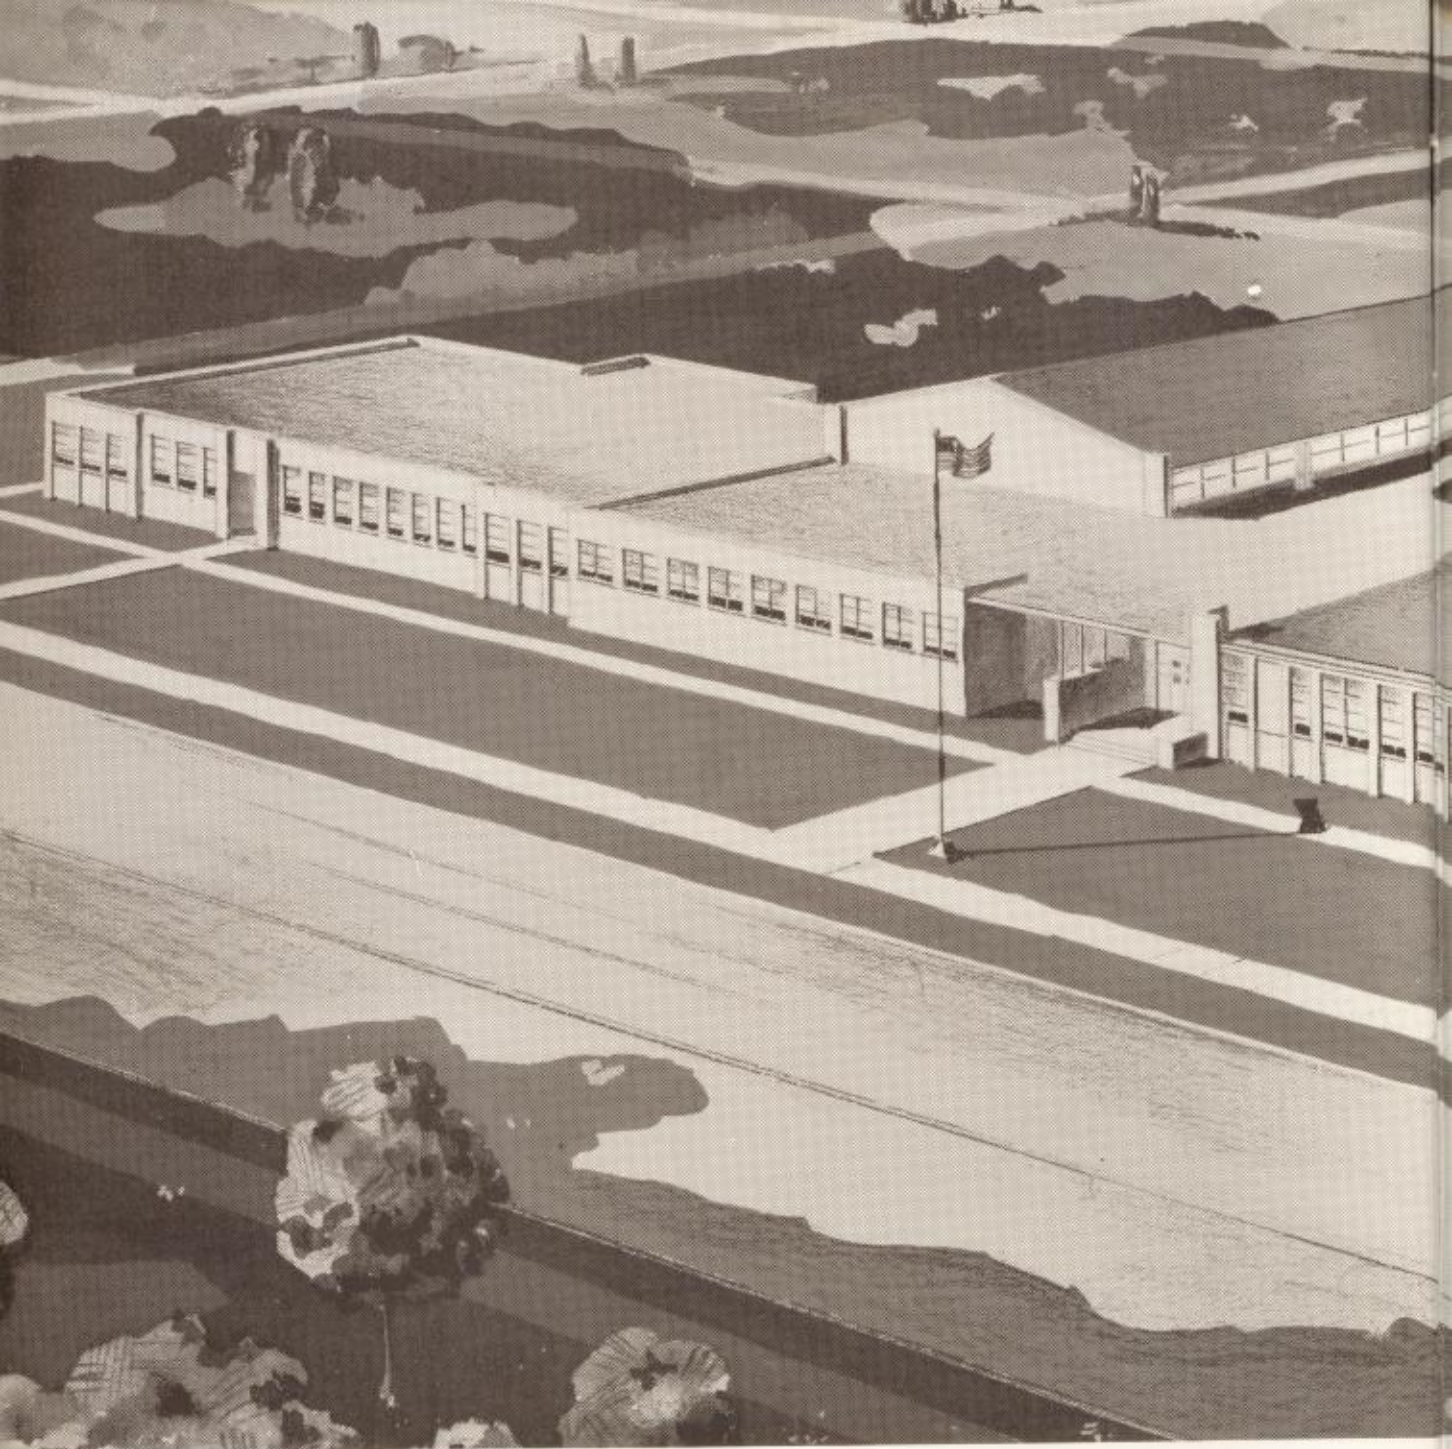

The whole town seemed to be in the swing of things. A new bowling alley and ex-student building were opened, a new church built, a new highway constructed, and there was still hope that the lake would finally progress from the talking stages.

Through the years, the 1961-62 school year will remain in the minds and hearts of students as "the year our school was built." This yearbook strives to help keep this memory with you in the years to come.

Sincerely,

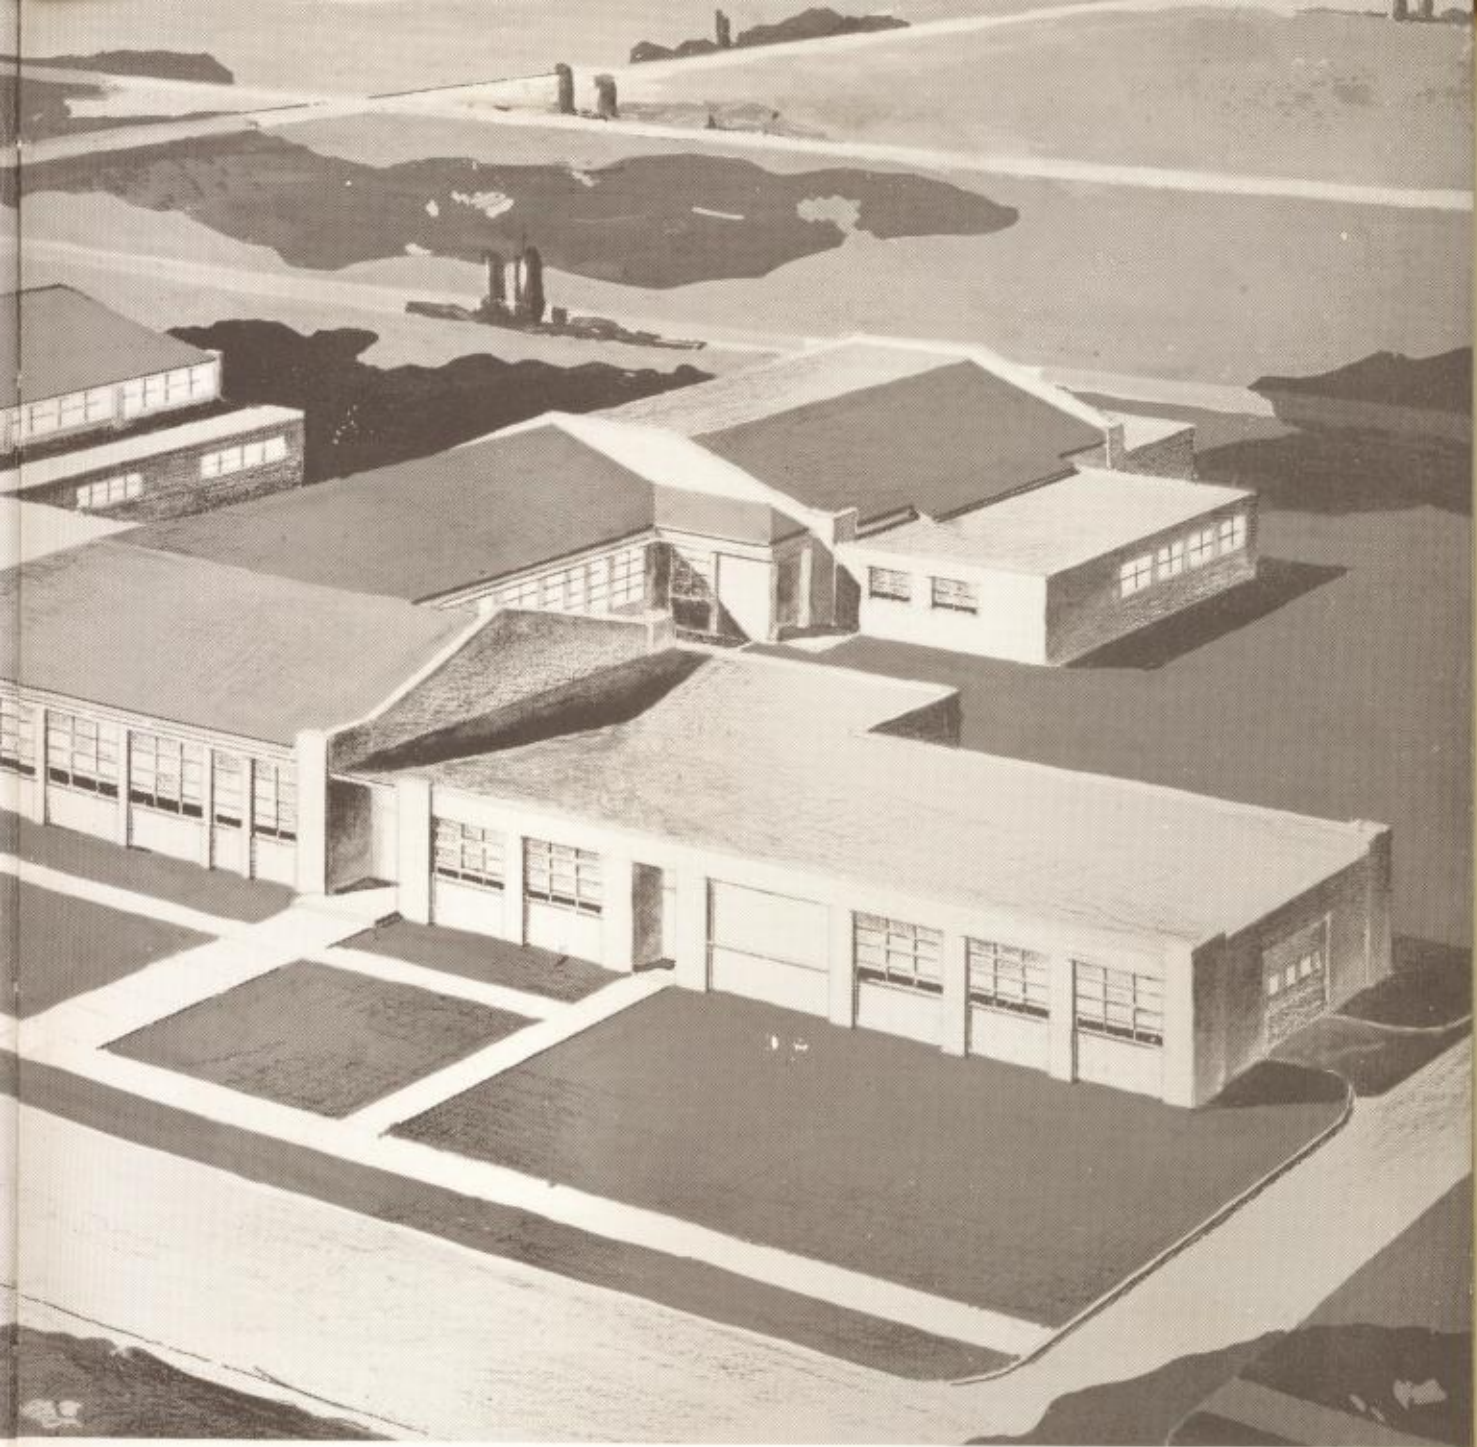

Johnnie Moss, Editor

CONSTRUCTION

OF A SCHOOL

A Yearbook of 1961-62 in Spur High School, Spur, Texas
Vol. 20

Spur High School's yearbook that has so long been ours is now yours to read and reminisce with and cheer in the years to come. This book does not merely represent one year's work, but many years as the staff members gained experience and a potential editor began planning "her annual" as a freshman. It represents hard work, sleepless nights, and spent energy. Was it worth it? We answer unanimously, "Yes," and hope you agree as you relive this past year in the pages of your LA ESPUELA.

dedication...

It is only natural to dedicate this book to the person responsible for the construction of our new school building. But there is no such ONE person. This is why the 1962 LA ESPUELA is dedicated to YOU who helped build our dream school- by airing an opinion, by casting a vote, by laying the brick.

Thank You!

...school life

These are the events that helped to build a school year. These are the people who made Spur High School.

Students welcome one another back for a whole year of fun together.

Freedom was extended three days...

Because of the building construction, school opening was postponed until September 6. When "the day" arrived, we swarmed into the new building a few less in number but twice as loud. You were considered "not in the Swing" if your schedule wasn't changed at least once. Thank goodness Mr. Williams had the heart to extend the schedule changes deadline an extra day.

There was always a workman in the halls. After getting caught in the rush a few times, they flattened to walls when the bell rang.

Immediately after wandering around finding rooms, walking around, more often over, workmen and tools, we began the annual griping about fees and the rising costs. The only complaint about the new building was nothing to sit on while visiting out front. And remember all the noise that machine by the new gym made?

"I've got just gobs to tell you," was the conversational theme those first few days.

Football season began the school year...

Because the old gym was being used as storage space, and the new gym was not completed, pep rallies were held in front of the school. Enthusiasm was high as the season began, but in face of defeat it seemed to wane just a little. The pep rallies then began to serve a new purpose--to pep up the backers instead of the team.

The bulldogs were tough and fought hard but could not win one of its conference games. We were in the toughest district of the state which included schools rated tops. Spur called the district the "Southwest Conference."

Pep squaders clap to the music at a football game.

Cheerleaders Betty Gregory, Linda Morrison, and Linda Campbell lead Spur backers in a yell before lighting the bonfire.

This is what the entire town of Spur looks forward to each year--Homecoming. Ex's returning to their former haunts were surprised at the changes in Spur. Foremost, of course, was the new school building, a big improvement over the old facilities.

A pep rally was held Thursday night downtown. The crowd was "screaming in the streets" as the cheerleaders led yell after yell and the band played and the Football Queen was presented.

For the first time many of the Homecoming programs were held in the new Ex-Student building. On Friday afternoon students and ex's alike enjoyed an assembly which featured Marshall Formby, class of '28, "next governor of Texas." Mr. Formby's class also won first place in the float judging.

Despite high enthusiasm and a "fightin" team, the Bulldogs lost their game to Post.

Homecoming and Halloween were

Lewis Settle rises from his coffin in the Sophomore classes' Haunted House. The other two haunts are Jim Archer and Teresa Dean.

Just about the wildest was October 31, Halloween night. The carnival, held in the Ex-Student building, included penny guessing, balltossing, silly hats, and of course the concession stand; the haunted house was just a block away. Brenda McElyea and Jerry Greer, both seniors, reigned over the festivities and Suzy Bell was judged highest in the Freshman beauty contest.

The party didn't end with the carnival but lasted into the wee hours of the morning. There were shaving cream fights, and at least one painted car; the next morning the drag was impossible for the debris. The morning after was strangely silent--a large per cent of every class quietly slept.

Spur's big fall events...

Pam Allen is one of the the first to receive her senior ring.

All Seniors' day at last--the gold rings with blue stones arrived, and forty students were in ecstasy.

Basketball season was here. The first games were all out of town, because the new gym wasn't completed. When it was finished in January, the town gave a good turnout for all the home games.

Rowell and La Espuela staff members attended Journalism Day at Tech. The Student Council tried valiantly to untangle the parking lot. Band members sold candy.

F. H. A. represents the career most girls desire.

Juniors sell refreshments at the basketball games.

Freshman learned quickly about high school organizations. The organization man was easy to spot--he was always running to committee meetings. Clubs offered programs, parties, and a sense of belonging. Whatever their reason for joining, every organization was well represented by Fish.

Organizations were for everyone.

John McGalliard, Linda Campbell, Kathy Hurst, Helen Blair, and Rudy Moreno listen attentively in Monday morning Student Council meeting.

With the new gym completed, the old one cleaned out, we finally had our first assembly, a talk by an exchange student from Argentina. The Student Council sponsored a student-faculty basketball game, and the football boys finally received their jackets. The coaches were rather unpopular with the female population after they ruled no boy was to let a girl wear his jacket.

Cheerleaders Mac Williams, Benny Hahn, Barlow Neaves, and Lewis Settle display previously undiscovered talent.

John McGalliard rejuvenated the medieval court.

The N H S presented an activity award each six weeks to a boy and girl. Linda Campbell, Richard Walker, Mila Marion, Charles McArthur, Becky Reid, Curt Parsons, Shirley Fitzgerald, and Jim White were recipients of the service awards.

The Juniors presented a play entitled SO VERY YOUNG. The seniors donned costumes for A CONNECTICUT YANKEE IN KING ARTHUR'S COURT. Although the classes were allowed only one night apiece, the plays were successful production-wise and financially.

Seniors were honored guests at a night club, which was the cafeteria disguised by the Juniors. This was the beginning of the procession of parties given in honor of the graduating class.

Ella Jo Powell peeks out at audience before going on stage.

It takes a lot of wind to play those horns.

The new band hall has a cold drink machine even!

There were more assemblies, and then the big one.

The N H S sponsored a "friendly week". Each day, members passed out tags reminding students to smile and say hello. For the assembly program, the student body elected the friendliest boy and girl. Mike Martin and Dianne Wilson received top honors.

Although every day in Spur High School sees Western dress, the Student Council proclaimed a Western Day. Since Mr. Williams announced that no real guns would be allowed, several boys brought whips. In assembly Mike Martin was tried for stealing Mrs. Johnston's portrait of George Washington. Charles McArthur staggered in and stole the show.

(Below) These were typical scenes as students turned out to vote.

For over an hour, Seniors were graduated and underclassmen were promoted one grade. This was the annual student body elections. Posters plastered the school walls and slogans were plentiful. Supporters worked frantically until zero hour for their candidates. Shirley Fitzgerald and Jim "Wheat" White were candidates for president; Roddy Bell and Rudy Moreno, for vice-president.

Polls were open during the noon hour in the front hall. Students poured in to vote. Just before last period, the Rowell announced that Jim White and Rudy Moreno had been elected.

Not only the Student Council but all organizations were electing new officers. Class and club elections were more subdued but enthusiasm ran high.

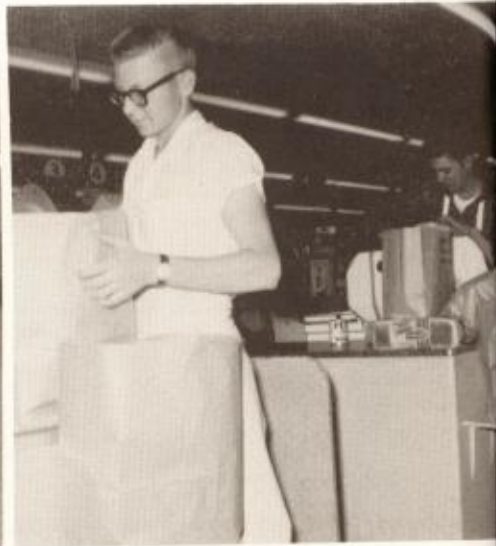

In class meeting Pam Allen listens to John Glenn's orbital flight on her transistor. Norma Goss isn't completely uninterested, just sleepy.

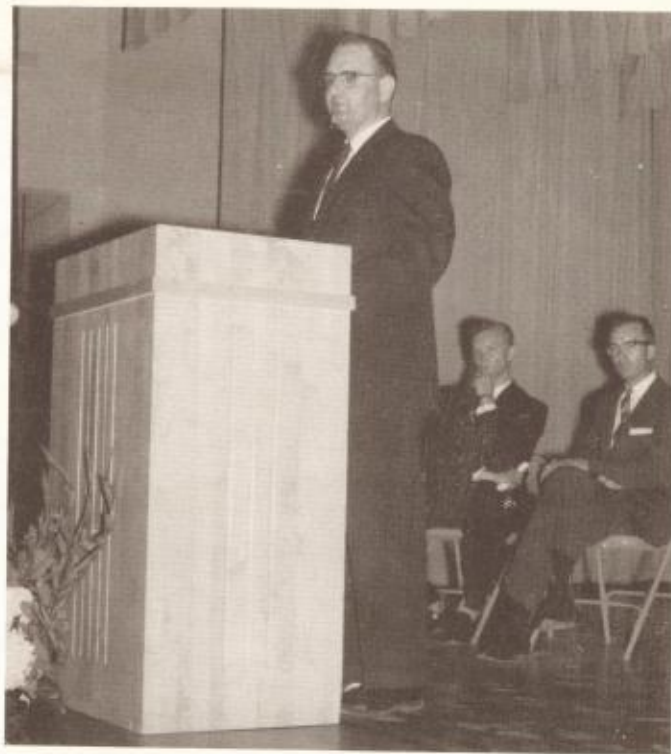

Pam, Charlene, John, and Donna give Bruce a haircut in the Homemake lab. Emmett Wallace tries his hand at a treddle sewing machine. These were typical scenes during activity period after spring fever became an epidemic.

But it was not all play. Many students such as John McGalliard and John Schmidt held after-school jobs.

The space age was really here

We weren't completely wrapped up in our little private worlds--world events were happening at dizzying speeds around us. Alan Shepard, John Glenn, and Scott Carpenter all made flights in space capsules. Students brought transisters to school and classes were forgotten those days. Berlin and Laos were the chief trouble spots. Many Spur ex's were serving in the armed forces, some in those particular areas. Elizabeth Taylor Hilton Wilding Todd Fisher shed Eddie to chase Dickie Burton, and everyone chose sides again. Since yesterday's newspaper was history, Monday morning current events were harder than ever to keep up-to-date.

Americanism was the subject of Dr. C. L. Kay's sermon at Baccalaureate.

Juniors Elaine Moore and Roddy Bell usher seniors at Baccalaureate.

There were numerous parties honoring the Seniors. The Baptists gave a western banquet; the Methodists, a circus party. Final exams suddenly appeared one day, and then school was over.

Baccalaureate service was held in the East Ward Auditorium on May 27. The long gowns made it a bit warm, but everyone survived. The speaker, Dr. C. L. Kay of Lubbock Christian College held the audience's attention with the sermon on ways that we might preserve America.

and suddenly it was the end of school.

The big night finally arrived. . . Graduation.

Graduation night finally arrived May 29. For once the wind did not blow, and Jones Stadium was the perfect place for the exercises. And no one hung a heel in the grass either!

The top five students gave short speeches on American heritages. Class President John McGalliard presented the senior gift of two moving picture screens to the school. Mr. Williams presented senior awards including scholarships and merit awards. Barlow Neaves and Johnnie Moss were honored as valedictorian and salutatorian, and Ella Jo Powell received the DAR citizenship award.

After a 5:30 breakfast at the Guy Goens the next morning, the Seniors left for Eureka Springs, Arkansas.

(Below) Three speakers at graduation were Johnnie Moss, salutatorian; Barlow Neaves, valedictorian; and Ella Jo Powell, third highest student.

Settle and Williams see a dream come true...

A man instrumental in the construction of our new school was our superintendent. Since coming to Spur three years ago, he has been pushing for a new school building. A common scene (when he can be caught standing still) is Mr. Settle surveying his proudest achievement.

What would school be like without Mr. Williams? After four years in Spur High he has been firmly established as a good friend to all the students, the kind of principal most schools dream of. Although the new school was a source of personal pride, nothing could take the place of the intercom as his favorite toy.

Mr. Williams had more fun than anyone with his favorite toy, the new intercom system.

The school board members could always be counted on to support SHS activities. Students whose parents were members didn't have it any easier; not only did the board support student activities, but also upheld decisions made by the administration.

Two new members, Fike Godfrey and Bill Glenn, joined the school board this year. All the members felt a sense of achievement as they looked at the new Spur High School their tireless efforts help build.

Girls felt unduly pampered in the new homemake lab...

The new homemaking lab was such an improvement over the former facilities, the girls were almost afraid to touch. At least it was possible to clean this one! The sewing room had the same machines but included dressing rooms and a separate cutting and fitting room.

And what a dream the kitchen was! The cooking units were so pretty even the inevitable burned food tasted good. All of this and on the ground floor too! --such riches.

Mrs. Simmons taught while Miss Taylor finished her studies at Texas Tech. After a two years' absence, Mrs. Bearden returned--it was the new lab that did it.

The shortest five minutes found anywhere is in typing class during timed writings.

"Is that woman mad?" came the pathetic cries of freshmen and seniors alike weighted under themes--essays, short stories, research papers. Sophomores still struggled with "Julius"; seniors suffered with Macbeth, juniors wrote their short stories and tackled their first research themes.

Mr. Williams relentlessly pounded in our heads the importance of pounding those typewriter keys quick and accurately. Five minutes never was long enough to get anywhere. The electric typewriters typed like mad if looked at. In bookkeeping nothing-nothing! -balanced.

Through chaos and confusion Mrs. Johnston always kept her head. Her history and civics classes were the calmest in school.

"Help! Help! Help!" was the cry of the English student...

New office, new gym, new rooms made school more bearable...

The lucky office girls each spent a period in the air conditioned offices. Mr. Settle, who always seemed to be somewhere else, rarely had the privilege. Mr. Haralson was always there to answer the phone, render first aid and listen to our problems.

The gym was finally completed the first of January, but it was worth waiting for! The dressing rooms were roomy and clean, and the coaches had their own office. It also featured folding bleachers and right around the corner was the concession stand.

Mr. Spray was one of the teachers with new rooms. The algebra students, however, weren't sure this helped their grades at all.

Until the new band hall was completed, the "noisiest class in school" practiced on stage in the old gym.

If Mr. Ericson was cheated out of a new lab, it was the band and ag department's gain. The band used the stage in the old gym for most of the first semester, but when they moved, it was in a big way. The new band hall was perhaps the most beautiful new addition. It featured an instrument, locker room, and sound proof practice room, spacious band hall, and an office for Mr. Taylor.

The last unit to be completed was the agricultural department. Besides a classroom, there was also an enormous shop, a tool room, and office.

The new building was really appreciated if for no other reason than it being all in one unit. No more running to the Junior High or the barracks for classes in the cold.

No more tramping through ice and wind and snow to classes...

These very important people keep SHS running...

Before the sun had time to rise, these were up to begin their jobs of making SHS "go". On sports and other school trips, the bus drivers worked into the night to take the students and teams there and back.

Mr. Williams and Mr. Wright had their hands full with the usual accidents and crises. Basketball games made their work double, but they always had time to find those lost books, unlock doors, and have a smile for everyone.

Mrs. Smith had the distinction of being the only woman school bus driver in Spur. Other drivers were Gene Roberts, Wilson Hagins, and Wayne Roberts.

. . . classes

Just as it takes materials to construct a building, so does it require students to assemble classes and form a school.

Above are the officers for the year President; John McGalliard, Vice-President; Mac Bell, Secretary; Kathy Thomason, Treasurer; Mila Marion.

The Bullpups appear ready for a game.

It seems as if all attention is on the cheerleaders Connie Carlisle, Patricia Foreman, and Patsy Powell.

"We at least can make noise."

(Left) You know, there is safety in numbers, good music, too.

And, there are always a few cut-ups.

greater skill in the musical field.

Last, but not least, the band section yields their talents.

(Below) It takes a lot of concentration to hit those high notes.

For the first time in Spur Schools, a separate band for the Junior High School was organized. Mr. Taylor, director, has worked very hard to increase skill and the size of the band. As a result, there will be a larger band in high school when these students complete their separate course of study.

Pictures, layout sheets, ambitious workers, sleepless nights--all stirred together, and after a year of toil the Spur High School annual emerged. We were often late for classes, but we finally made it--but barely. The dirtiest word around was "Deadline" which was always there too soon.

So at last the scraps left in Room 2 were picked up and moth balled in the filing cabinet waiting for next year. It seems we always look to the future even after a wonderful time as this past year has been. The seniors look forward to college, jobs, and marriage; underclassmen wait patiently for their senior year.

We hope this book will stand the test of time and always help you relive this wonderful year of 1961-62 in Spur High School.

Our job is finished for the year, and the result of our sweat, blood, and tears are now yours.

At last what for so long has been ours, is now yours...
